Concept/Premise:

I'd like to make this an comedy action-type film. This is no normal phone call, and there's a reason he's in that building on campus at that time.

Look:

Given the suspense type feel I'm going for, I thought having the "look" be a little cloudier/ towards the grey side of things might be cool.

Script:

I think it would be fun to have the guy be a secret agent on his first important mission. He's kinda freaking out, so to keep himself calm he's repeating his instructions to himself. Inner Voice. Something like:

Alright, David, keep calm. Act casual. Like a college student, not a secret agent.

Just walk on past professor Sandwich's office—straight face, no big deal.

Ahh! He's in there!

Calm down, David. Keep walking. Straight to the chairs upstairs. Sit down, act casual, read my papers, and wait for the phone call.

David: Hello?

Phone: David. You in?

David: Yeah.

Phone: Good! We're moving in.

David: Ok So what time is that happening at?

Phone: 2 minutes

David: Ok, when do you need me to be there?

Phone: Wait 5 minutes and meet us upstairs.

David: Ok I'll see you then.

Phone: 10-4 Good buddy.

David: Adio!
